

IN AND AROUND KHON KAEN

Khon Kaen is situated in the heart of Northeastern Thailand, approximately 440 kilometres from Bangkok. The recorded history of the city began in the reign of King Rama I in 1797 although archaeological evidence suggests that the area was occupied a thousand years earlier during the Dvaravati period. Nevertheless, the city represents Esan heritage until nowadays.

Today the number of inhabitants in the Muang district (including the city and its immediate suburbs) is approximately 352,000. Indeed, Khon Kaen is currently one of the fastest growing cities in the Northeast due, not only to its central position, but also to a government initiative to promote the city as a gateway to Indochina.

Khon Kaen has been promoted as a regional institutional centre, as well as one of the nine industrial cities of Thailand. The province is also a hometown to more than 200 government administrative agencies and state enterprises that operate at the regional level.

Transportation

If you want to go to downtown from campus, you can take a blue "songthaew" (mini-bus) #8, red songthaew #16 and air-conditioning yellow bus #15 in front of Food & Service Center, which is located opposite to the Instructional Resources Center or Central Library, or anywhere on campus just know the direction of the "songthaew" or bus route and on which side of the road to wait for it.

A green songthaew #4 opposite the Srinagarind Hospital on the Friendship (Mitraparp) Highway is another choice to downtown. However, beware of the time, as they all stop coming onto the campus around 7:00 or 8:00 pm. After this time, you have to find your own way back on to campus. Usually this means taking a "tuk-tuk" (motorized three-wheel vehicle). The price should be around 60-80 Baht. The "tuk tuk" will drive you everywhere, as far as the airport. Within downtown, you can take "songthaew" to go from one place to another, with its cost of 8 Baht.

Sensing traditional life of Khon Kaen, you may choose a "samlor", a non-motorized three-wheel vehicle, costing around 20 Baht (but you can always bargain) to wander around the downtown.

For those who would like to go to the Big C supermarket, free buses take you there from the ordinary bus station, and from the food & service university complex on campus at 11:30 am and 4:30 pm .

Song Taew

Song Taew (also known as baht buses) are privately owned, government endorsed pickup trucks that have two bench-style seats in the back and are covered in an attempt to keep out the elements. It is the cheapest form of transportation in Khon Kaen, with at least 18 different routes (probably more) servicing the city. Song Taew are distinguished by their color, being green, red, yellow, white & blue (yes, there are more, discover by yourself). They can be waved to stop at ANY point along their route, and they can be stopped at ANY points as you press its bell button. Getting off at the junction or road corner is very dangerous. It is really unrecommended to do so (do not follow some Khon Kaen people who did it) if you don't want to be charged by the police. Song taew drivers generally have a total disregard for traffic laws, that it can be very interesting to ride on them. Also at "rush hour" (7-8 AM, 5-6 PM) the trucks tend to be so over-loaded that the front wheels bounce off the ground. Song taew runs from 5:00 AM until 9:00 PM.

Song taew routes are very confusing. Passengers should look for a number on various parts of the bus (such as the door or its top) to determine their route. The number can be placed in more than one location, so finding the route number can be difficult.

TUK TUK

The "TUK TUK" is a small car with three wheels. The engine is a two stroke engine, petrol or gas powered. "TUK TUK" are really a tourist attraction. Sometimes provincial "TUK TUK" have a different look that Bangkok TUK TUK, and few women are driving "TUK TUK". When buses reach their destination, "TUK TUK" drivers surround the passengers in order to convince them to sit in their car. Sometimes they even take the bags into their "TUK TUK" before any agreement.

Often tourists can be seen inside. Before sitting inside, one should negotiate the price. The price for a TUK TUK in Khon Kaen is quite reasonable. A trip from downtown to Khon Kaen Airport is supposed to be lower than 80 Baht, and for a trip from downtown to Khon Kaen University is less than 70 Baht. Riding on a TUK TUK in Khon Kaen is quite comfortable, convenient, and faster than a shuttle bus, it is more expensive as it is direct and does not stop on route. However, it is one of the interesting choices for sightseeing in Khon Kaen, and a fantastic experience. Price is of course higher for foreign tourists. It can be up to 2 or 3 times the price for short distances, so haggle. Another tricky thing to get 10 more Baht is for the driver to claim to have no small change.

Sam Lor (Three wheels)

Sam lors are three-wheeled tricycles with a covered seat in the back that are powered by the individual driving them. Years ago, before the development of tuk-tuks, they were the only way to get around town.

Nowadays they tend to be a nuisance and very dangerous weaving in and out of modern day traffic. Their prices tend to be slightly lower than tuk-tuk's, and really are not feasible transportation in the ever-growing community. They should be avoided unless a photographic opportunity presents itself, or you are very sure of your destination. For those driving at night in Khon Kaen be aware that Sam lors are quite common and have no lights or reflective objects so they are extremely difficult to see.

Driving in Khon Kaen

If you choose to drive a car or motorcycle, it would be the best to have a license. An International Drivers License is valid for 1 year only. You can drive as a tourist on many foreign drivers licenses, but if you are staying longer you should get a Thai license. You can transfer an International License (and many others) to a Thai one at the licensing office (on Soonrachakan Road, just along from City Hall) for 60 Baht and an hour or so wait.

Needed documents include two passport-sized photographs, two copies of your passport and entry VISA (a street vendor outside provides a photocopying machine and polaroid camera), proof of your residence, and a certificate of health. A certificate of health can be obtained from a doctor. You can probably get one for free if you queue at a public hospital. However, if you go to a private clinic and pay for 60 Baht you will get it without waiting. The doctor will not even test your eyesight! Make a copy of the certificate of good-health for you may need it again.

Proof of residence is best as a letter from the University. Licenses for car and motorcycle are separated! The drivers license is very useful as it is the main identification and can be used instead of your passport on various matters. If you can not transfer an existing license, do not be worried `cause the test is very easy anyway.

It is unrecommend to drive a car or motorcycle without registration and taxation. Because when you have an accident, you will end up paying all your own medical expenses and those of anyone you hit. The police regularly have random check for helmet wearing for riders (both riders and passengers), as well as drinking excess alcohol and safety belt. So be warned!
